Full Week-End Program Closes Gould's Year

With Jerrold Davis acting as marshal, the graduating class of Gould Academy marched into a packed William Bingham Gymnasium, Sunday afternoon, June 6, for their Commencement Program, solemnly proceeding to their places to the martial strains of "War March of the Priests," played by the orchestra under the direction of Miss Ann Griggs.

After the invocation by Rev. William Fenner, the girls' glee club sang "Tschalkowsky's beautiful, 'God of All Nature.' The salutatory was delivered by Ruth Judkins, who explained that she and her two fellow speakers had chosen their unified theme from a comment in Time Magazine's Twenty-fifth Anniversary Issue: that their editorial policy was based on interest in the new, respect for the old, and faith in the things money cannot buy. Miss Judkins took "interest in the new" as her topic.

After a rousing song, "Dance, My Comrades," by the boys' glee club, Sally Adams developed the second topic, "respect for the old," and then the orchestra played Keler Bela's popular "Hungarian Comedy Overture." The valedictory by Gertrude Penner concluded the three topics with her address on "faith in the things that money cannot buy." All three speakers displayed unusual grasp of their subjects and were a credit to the careful training of Mrs. Helen Dyer. The varsity glee club concluded the student participation in the program with Griggs' "Land-Sighting."

Headmaster Elwood F. Ireland then announced the awards and honors to the school as a whole and to the individual members of the class of 1948. The honor of having its numerals engraved on the Scholarship Cup, presented by the class of 1925, was won by the class of 1948. Highest average rank, permitting her name to be engraved on the Honor Shield, gift of the class of 1930, was made by Gertrude Penner, won by maintaining this rank over a period of at least two years.

Mr. Ireland awarded scholarship medals to the highest ranking boy and girl in each class as follows: Freshmen: Ted Chadbourne, Laura Wilson; sophomores: Marilyn Judkins, Merle Noyes; juniors: Marilyn Adams, John MacDuffie; seniors: Gertrude Penner, Louis Wood.

Those maintaining an average of ninety or better in all courses and thus having their names engraved on a special Scholarship Shield were announced as Gertrude Penner, Ruth Judkins, and Sally Adams.

The Rensselaer Award for mathematics and science was given to Richard Bayles, while the Bausch-Lomb Medal for progress in science went to William O'Brien. The Pratt Scholarships were won by Guy Emery, Falmouth, and Elaine Fuller, Upton. The Ralph Gould medals for progress in music were won by Grace Lenfest and Quentin Hall.

Before presenting the diplomas, Headmaster Ireland assured the seniors that these exercises were indeed "commencement" and that far from being separated from Gould, they would all be most welcome when they should return to the campus; in closing he referred to the message contained in the valedictory address, stressing the importance of those intangibles which "money cannot buy."

The following seniors were then awarded diplomas: College Preparatory—Sarah F. Adams, Edgar M. Bailey Jr., Richard E. Bayles, Martha E. Crocker, Barbara F. Crockett, Gloria P. Cutting, Paul M. Desautels, Leroy W. Dymont Jr., Richard A. Dymont, Richard E. Elwell, David L. Farrington, Bert M. Fernald, James W. Gray, Quentin N. Hall, Herbert E. Hunt, John P. Jones, Ruth E. Judkins, Marvin E. Kendall, Lawrence D. Kimball Jr., Grace A. Lenfest, Frances H. MacRae, Margaret T. Mayer, Robert W. Medeiros, William M. O'Brien, Gertrude P. Penner, L. Donald Powers, Mark P. Rines, Barbara J. Spooner, Edwin E. Swain Jr., George F. Terry III, Evelyn F. Vinton, Louis A. Wood, Carol E. Woodcock, Theodore A. Young; College Scientific—John C. Howland, Reginald K. Nye; General Course—David L. Bennett, Barbara May Dougherty, Richard I. Shields, Janice Underwood; Bookkeeping—Kathleen Brooks, Leland E. Brown, Geraldine M. Linnell, Betty L. McAllister, Carolyn M. Noyes, Jessie V. Wermenchuk; Commercial—Norma Faye Bean, Constance E. Coolidge, Wilma J. Croteau, Ann M. Cummings, Jessie M. Jones, Barbara J. Learned, Neva C. Mundt, Barbara L. Storey, Carol M. Swan; Manual Arts—James A. Browne, Robert J. Croteau, David F. Foster, Frank A. Gibson Jr., Robert E. Grover, Irving W. McAllister, Richard F. Melville, Donald M. Morrill, Erland D. Scribner, Harry Z. Swan Jr., Paul W. Wright; Certificates—Richard I. Aldrich, Roger C. Beedy.

The benediction was delivered by Rev. Kingsley Hawthorne.

LAST CHAPEL HELD JUNE 3

With Headmaster Elwood F. Ireland presiding, the Last Chapel exercise for the conclusion of the school year were held in the William Bingham Gymnasium at one o'clock, Thursday afternoon, June 3. Many of the awards usually reserved for the graduation exercises were given by Mr. Ireland at this time, with the actual scholarship awards only being given at the latter exercises.

An innovation was the awarding of a distinctive pin to the members of the Camera Club for completion of required achievement to the following: Misses Verna Swift and Sylvia Collins, Lee Dymont, Mark Rines, E. Swain, Tim Torry, Carol Woodcock, David Farrington, Bert Fernald, Dick French, Sterling Haskell, Phil Hussey, and John Paterson.

Girls' Physical Education Medals were awarded to the following: Sally Adams, Norma Bean, Connie Coolidge, Wilma Croteau, Gloria Cutting, Barbara Dougherty, Ruth Judkins, Barbara Learned, Betty McAllister, Carolyn Noyes, Gertrude Penner, Carol Swan and Evelyn Vinton.

The exercises were concluded with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

TRADITIONAL CLASS DAY

Because of the combining of most of the activities of the Academy Commencement into two and a half days, the Class Day exercises of the class of 1948 were held on the evening of Friday, June 4, in the William Bingham Gymnasium.

Marked by Jerrold Davis, the class marched in to listen to the traditional "take-offs" and jokes contained in the will, gifts, and address to the undergraduates, Richard Dymont, speaking in a delightfully informal fashion, made "Attitude" the theme of his address to the underclassmen. Leaving various objects to their friends in the lower classes, William O'Brien and Frances MacRae did justice to their roles as lawyers who in due legal form had drawn up the "wills" for their class. Every member of the senior class was remembered when it came to the passing out of many and varied gifts, those to the girls being humorously handled by David Farrington and Lee Dymont, and to the boys by Margaret Mayer and Barbara Dougherty. The exercises ended with the singing of the class ode, composed by Ann Cummings and Geraldine Linnell.

BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS GIVEN BY REV. BEACH

Parents and friends of the graduating class of Gould Academy filled the West Parish Congregational Church to capacity, Sunday morning, June 6, to attend the Baccalaureate Service.

Assisting the baccalaureate speaker, Rev. David N. Beach, pastor of the Center Church, New Haven, Conn., were Rev. William Penner and Rev. Kingsley Hawthorne. Music was furnished by the Gould choir, and supplemented by a harp solo, Handel's "Largo," played by Grace Lenfest, a member of the graduating class.

Dr. Beach took for his sermon topic, "Your Own Town Meeting," especially appropriate for a small New England community, and spoke with a wealth of illustrative anecdote of how this term might be applied to one's own soul-searching and self-analysis.

Flowers for the platform decoration were supplied by Mrs. Elwood F. Ireland, who also was organist for the occasion.

Home, Baker of Plainfield, N. J., is visiting relatives and friends in town.

Edmond Vachon is at Fort Dix for a month. Mrs. Vachon and son Paul are spending a few weeks with her sister in New Jersey.

WILLIAM R. DAVIS BUYS HOTEL SUDBURY

A change in ownership of the Hotel Sudbury took place the first of the week when William R. Davis took over the management. Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Fredey, who have conducted the business the past year and a half, left on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Davis arrived last Saturday from Michigan, where Mr. Davis has been in charge of a health of restaurants. Mr. Davis is a native of New England and welcomes the opportunity to return here.

During the Fredeys' stay here the name of the hotel was changed from the Gateway House to the Hotel Sudbury. Previously the place was known for years as Maple Inn. During the past winter Mr. Fredey has represented the Eutectic Welding Alloys Corp., of New York as field manager in Maine and Rockingham County, New Hampshire, and plans to continue in this work.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL QUOTA SET AT $900

An announcement made by Carl L. Brown, general chairman of the annual appeal here for The Salvation Army, reveals that the quota has been set at $900. The letter of appeal about to be mailed to all friends of The Salvation Army explains the purposes of this fund-raising effort and briefly describes the various activities of the organization which have endeared it to persons from all walks of life. The Bethel Salvation Service Fund receives part of the money raised here so that those in need may continue to receive the various necessities of life unobtainable for them without assistance of this nature. Families as well as individuals have been aided through the agency of the fund. Administered by a committee of local citizens without overhead expense, the flexibility of the fund has been pointed out by some of its outstanding feature. Immediate and emergency aid without red tape or embarrassment is supplied by this unique organization without discriminations because of race, color or creed. This impartiality is a distinctive note of all Salvation Army work.

The Treasurer of the appeal committee is Miss Frances Morrill, Bethel Savings Bank. She explains that the institutions of The Salvation Army are many and diversified in nature so that all people from the infant in swaddling clothes to the aged without relatives or friends will benefit from a successful completion of the appeal.

The members of the sponsoring committee for the appeal are: Myron C. Bryant; Mrs. Mary C. Carroll, registered nurse; Harold Chamberlain; Mrs. M. C. Fredey; Dr. S. S. Greenleaf; George N. Thompson; Louis Van Den Kerckhoven; all of Bethel. Also, Arthur L. Lang and George P. Stowell of Andover, Robert L. Clemens and H. Kirke Stowell of Bryant Pond; Parker Russell of Hanover.

KEEP GREEN PROGRAM ORGANIZES IN COUNTY

About 70 Oxford County people attended the organization meeting Tuesday afternoon at the William Bingham Gymnasium for the formation of a KEEP GREEN committee for this county. The group was made up of those interested in the preservation of woodlands and included operators, town officials, fire wardens and others from all sections of the county.

The meeting was opened at 2 o'clock by the organizing chairman, Arthur N. Stowell of Dixfield, who soon introduced Forest Commissioner A. D. Nutting. He gave an explanation of the objects of the movement and its progress in the nation since its inception in the state of Washington in 1941. Following his talk there was a discussion period in which forest fire fighting problems were aired and some of the solutions explained. Logging practices were discussed, including state regulations regarding slash and permits for burning grass, etc.

Mr. Stowell was unanimously named to continue as permanent chairman and at his suggestion the county was divided into three districts for convenience in organizing. Charles Fox and Mr. Eastman of Fryeburg were appointed as committee members for the western district, Charles Cummings of Norway in the central district, and Marshall Reed of Roxbury and Theodore Spear of Rumford for the eastern district. Another member will be named to serve with Mr. Cummings. Town committees will be named and the organization of the county completed under the direction of this group.

At the close of the meeting a rising vote of thanks was given to express appreciation of the generosity of Gould Academy in granting the use of the gymnasium for the meeting.

The KEEP GREEN program is a plan of public education in forest fire prevention. It has proven most effective as a localized participating program such as is now being perfected throughout Maine. Since the formation of the state organization in March similar work has started in several counties. The success of the idea has been most pronounced in Washington where it started seven years ago and the forest fire losses are much reduced.

Besides work in the schools which is of course especially effective, the practice is to keep forest fire news before the people in all newspapers, encourage the sale of advertisements promoting the campaign, distribute posters and other materials to acquaint as many people as possible with the urgency of the program.

Since the beginning the movement has been promoted and aided by American Forest Products Industries, Inc., which is cooperating with the state committee and forestry department in the present campaign.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO HAVE TWO MONTHS RECESS

At the regular meeting of the Bethel Chamber of Commerce at the Legion Home Wednesday evening, a discussion of the operation of a local information center was the principal topic during the business session. Methods of financing the project were considered. It was voted to suspend regular meetings during July and August.

Supper served by members of the American Legion Auxiliary was followed by a program which featured a demonstration by Dr. Bradford and assistants in the National Education Association's laboratory of "group dynamics" which is opening at Gould Academy.

Nations Make Choices

As drastic and as devastating as war is, I am confident that the economic troubles of many European countries are not traceable entirely to the aggressions of war. Famines, wars, oppressions: these are symptoms, not causes. Certain nations, like Switzerland, have surprisingly well amidst the decay and chaos so common in Europe. Little Switzerland is not hibernating for help. She is a free enterprise country.

Of course, Switzerland was not a belligerent, and hence was spared some spoils of war. But now comes news that Belgium is prospering. What is the reason? Belgium chose a free economic system at the close of the war, when she might have taken some fishy panacea. This little country rightly chose a system of free enterprise and economic freedom as the system most likely to bring recovery.

A Practical Way
A reasonable degree of freedom is enjoyed by the Belgian people. Her people have it that the standard of living there is well up toward pre-war levels. Newspaper reports have called attention to Belgium's airline, Sabena, which reported its net profit for the year at $2,900,000. This has happened despite the fact it started out with practically nothing after the war. The airline had lost most of its equipment, and had to get help from the government to go ahead.

This is high contrast to what is happening to British airlines. Owned entirely by the socialist government and operated by them, the British airlines find difficulty in keeping their losses down to that figure. This difference is that Britain blundered in choosing, and Belgium chose wisely. Surely the European neighbors of Belgium will notice her good example. Planned economy sometimes looks good on paper, but it is free economy that permits people to use their initiative and work out their own salvation.

Matter of Teamwork
I am not at all surprised to hear these things about Belgium. I was there in the summer of 1946. One very remarkable thing impressed me. And in this there is a lesson for our own people. Later was at that time re-creating in Belgium with the management of industry and with a government, in keeping stores of an America has not achieved that much to date, and we need to learn from Belgium in the battle against depression.

In Belgium, labor leaders were saying that it was necessary to increase production and to get down prices rather than put up wages and keep prices high. They agreed that in the long run this would be the best for labor. It is not surprising that the standard of living is so high in Belgium. It is not surprising that the country has recently turned the country.

Freedom Wins
As a result of this story, and to quote, the best for private ownership and private management of industry. Belgium has come back more rapidly than other European countries that were hit by war. This experience is only another link in the strong chain of evidence that free men working in a free economy are happy, or at least better off than they could ever be under a rule of totalitarianism. Belgium is a free country, and she is a free country.

Dale Carnegie

Author of "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

MAKES BUSINESS OF HELPING FELLOW MEN

HERE'S A MAN who helps people and doesn't charge them a cent.

Albert Light was once a fibre box manufacturer, until he got tired of making money. Five years ago, at the comparatively young age of 52, he sold his business for the purpose of expanding his hobby—that of helping his fellow-men without regard to race, color or creed. He had already been doing this—for the 25 years he had been in business.

D. Carnegie

There was prison welfare work to be done, hospital work, work with orphans, and other activities that run the gamut of human relations. To him it was fun—the fun and pleasure of helping the other fellow. He wanted more of it.

He knew from experience that many people could straighten out their lives if they just had someone or some place they could go to and talk over their problems in confidence.

So he enrolled with Paul Popenoe, nationally known as the executive director of the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles. He took the course in marriage counseling, and became so interested, and so helpful, that he was made a member of the Board of Incorporators.

He doesn't encourage or give advice by mail. He says that is like trying to practice medicine by correspondence. People make appointments to see him. Lawyers ask him to mediate between husbands and wives; doctors send patients because he is such a good listener, and many times that is all a patient needs.

Mr. Light looks and acts years younger than he is. He has a keen sense of humor, and that is one ingredient for keeping young. His friends tell him that he is still in business, that he merely transferred from one line to another. And he replies: "But what a difference! No strikes; no aggressive competition; no worry about whether business is good or bad. My business always is good!"

THIS WEEK IN Washington

"POLITICS" is the word used by some Republicans as President Truman, for the fourth time since he has been in the White House, asks for extension of coverage and increase in payments for the entire social security program. And "politics" is the word used by some Democrats as GOP leadership is apparently dilly-dallying with the atomic energy commission in seeking to amend the law so they will not be forced to approve David Lilienthal and other members of the commission for their full terms, as the basic atomic energy act provides.

AND ELECTION YEAR POLITICS has invaded the field of agriculture in both the 1948-1949 agricultural appropriation measure and the new senate agricultural bill sponsored by Senator Aiken of Vermont and others. The GOP steering committee has decided to move the long-range farm program for this season until word got around that the President would demand enactment of a program in a special message to the congress. Then there was a scurrying about and the Aiken bill was placed on the senate calendar for action.

With Democrats winning two important fights in the senate on the agricultural appropriations bill and losing one, that measure emerged from the senate carrying a total of more than a billion dollars, $1,175,727,193 to be exact, some 34 million dollars more than the bill as it was passed in the house.

First, in a strictly partisan vote Senator Aiken of North Carolina lost an amendment which would have increased the appropriation for soil conservation for 1949 from 150 million dollars to 250 million dollars. The vote was 53 to 34 with one lone Democrat, Senator McClellan of Tennessee, voting against the amendment.

But later, Senator Russell of Oregon introduced an amendment to increase soil conservation appropriations for 1949 from 250 million dollars to 300 million dollars and with the help of three Republicans, Senator Cooper of Kentucky, Senator Aiken of North Carolina and Senator Morse of Oregon, the amendment carried by a split party vote of 41 to 38 with Senator Byrd of Virginia the lone Democrat voting against it.

Then the solid Democrat minority, with the help of three Republicans,

Senators Aiken of Vermont, Bridges of New Hampshire and Cooper of Kentucky, beat back an amendment offered by Senator Young of North Dakota which would have changed the present method of making conservation payments and returned the payment system used before the war.

IN THE MEANTIME the long established bi-partisan solidarity of the farm bloc, composed mainly of Southern Democrats and Mid-west Republicans, is threatened with dissolution. Fight over the oleo tax repeal bill started the break. Then there is a fight over whether friends of agricultural extension service or those of the soil conservation service should control the soil conservation program. And then there are the party programs, each making a play for the farm vote. The GOP fight against farm cooperatives is taking a toll in certain agricultural areas insofar as the Republican leadership is concerned.

With all these factors in mind it may be understood why the present agricultural appropriation bill, with over a billion dollars in appropriations as compared with last year when congress cut the appropriation from 718 million dollars to 612 million dollars, passed the senate and why the loan authority for rural electrification administration is increased from 200 million dollars to 400 million dollars this year.

As an indication of the so-called "politics" following the house fight on the oleo tax repeal bill, Rep. Harold Knutson, Republican of Minnesota, has introduced a bill to repeal cotton import quotas and substitute a flat tariff of 10 per cent and Rep. Clara Hoffman, Republican of Michigan, is sponsoring a bill to repeal cotton export subsidies . . . and first concrete evidence of retaliation in the house agricultural committee's step-by-step bill for an 18-month extension of the present price support program.

Under the Aiken long-range farm support measure which likely may not have time to be passed before adjournment on June 19 the entire soil conservation program is decentralized through the setting up of state and county agricultural program councils and committees.

YOU CAN'T QUIT ADVERTISING YOU'RE TALKING TO A PARADE NOT A MASS MEETING

"Speak Softly, but Carry a Big Stick!"

A TEN STRIKE

The beneficial result of continuous work by the Union Pacific Railroad in behalf of accident prevention and safety programs to protect its employees and the public, was never more gratifyingly demonstrated than in a letter written by a Union Pacific fireman to the Omaha World-Herald.

It carried a message to a boy and girl who drove across the track of a speeding train. "One second from eternity" is the way the fireman described the position they were in. His appeal to this unknown couple, through the newspaper, which concluded with these words, "And for God's sake, don't try it again!" was so dramatic in its wording that it was copied throughout the country. It has been read by millions of people with a saving of lives that would have otherwise been sacrificed to carelessness.

One spontaneous outburst like this by an employee of a company that has been doing everything in its power to teach safety practices to its own personnel as well as others, encourages it to do even more intensive work along the same lines.

"Look and listen for moving equipment," is a railroad slogan that means more today than ever before, not only on railroad property but on every street and highway.

VANDENBERG—big man from Michigan

SEN. ARTHUR VANDENBERG

BORN—March 22, 1884, in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

PARENTS—Father, Aaron Vandenberg, a harness-maker of Dutch descent. Mother, Alpha Hendrick, of English descent.

ENTERED POLITICS—In 1907. As a newspaperman he concentrated on writing Republican editorials.

Before he was twelve years of age Arthur Vandenberg learned the meaning of hard times. When his father's business failed during the panic of 1893, his mother was forced to take in boarders and Arthur went to work before and after school, on week-ends and vacations.

After trying one year to work his way through the University of Michigan he dropped out and took a reporting job with a Grand Rapids newspaper. As a newspaperman, he proved to be a natural. He became editor and publisher at the age of 22, and when, 21 years later, he sold his share of the paper to enter the U. S. senate, he received more than $500,000.

Vandenberg has actually been elected to only one public office—that of U. S. senator. He entered the senate by appointment to fill an unexpired term in 1928, but he has held that office by election ever since.

The senator has been married twice; in 1907 to Elizabeth Watson of Grand Rapids, who died in 1916, and in 1918 to Hazel H. Whitaker, a school teacher. He has one son (by his first wife), Arthur H. Vandenberg, Jr., who is now 40, and two daughters, Mrs. John Bailey of Battle Creek, Mich., and Mrs. Edward Pfeiffer of Huntington, N. Y.

Vandenberg is a big man and his physicians proclaim him in excellent health. He is six feet one inch tall and weighs two hundred pounds. He dresses very carefully in custom-made blue or grey suits. His wife selects the material.

The senator's own daily grind is ample evidence of his vitality. He is in his office every morning at 8:30. At noon he takes up his chores as presiding officer of the senate, which keeps him busy until 5 or 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

For an hour or so after adjournment each day, he squeezes in a few personal appointments and then gets to his hotel for dinner with his wife about 7:30. He has very little social life.

Vandenberg has said that he is not a candidate for the Republican nomination. At the Michigan GOP convention recently he told delegates that his name was not to be entered at the Philadelphia convention.

However, many Republicans favor Vandenberg as their party's presidential candidate and many more are apt to swing to him if the Philadelphia convention should become deadlocked over any of the announced aspirants for the Republican nomination.

ed the officers' chairs and presented a fine program under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Andrew. This consisted of songs, readings, stories, a play, "Jemima's Peddler," contests, a Style Wress Review given by seven men, who impersonated movie actresses, and a short talk by the Deputy of North Franklin Grange, Irving Maxwell. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Mr and Mrs Walter Ordway recently visited their daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Taylor at Frye for a week.

Mr and Mrs Walter Ring and granddaughter, Miss Felicia Collette, of West Paris, were week end guests of Mr and Mrs Frank Hayes.

Mrs. Mary Felt entertained her daughter, and husband, Mr and Mrs Lawrence Strout and two children of Mechanic Falls, Sunday. Callers were her daughter, Mrs. Alice Roberts and family of Locke Mills.

Mrs J Douglas Thompson was the guest of her parents, Mr and Mrs Fowler at Costigan, a few days last week.

Mrs Florence Wentworth and daughter, Miss Mildred Wentworth, of South Portland were week end guests of Ralph Bacon of Brookside cottage. His uncle, Walter Bacon of Norway, is spending a week's vacation with him.

Mr and Mrs Winfield Brooks of Schenectady, N. Y., called Saturday to see his aunt, Mrs. Mary Felt. Michael, son of Mr and Mrs Eldon Hathaway is recovering from an attack of bronchitis.

By REV. ROBERT H. HANFEE
Ether's Zeal for Her People.
 Lesson for June 13: Esther 4:
 10-17; 9:20-22, 26-27.

Memory Selection: Esther 4:14.
 The putting away of Vashti and the choice of the beautiful Jewess, Esther, as queen laid upon a woman the burden of saving her people from extermination.

Prime Minister Haman was mortally offended when Esther's uncle, Mordecai, refused him honor. He induced Ahasuerus to sign a decree of extermination of the Jews in Persia. When Mordecai appealed to Esther to intercede with the king for the Jews, she said she would venture into his presence, without being called, at the risk of her life, but promised she would dare the risk.

The king held out the sceptre and asked her request. Esther asked him to dine with her and at that time invited the king and Haman to a banquet with her the following day. Mordecai's refusal to bow to Haman dashed his joy in being invited to the banquet. His wife advised him to prepare a gallows fifty cubits high and ask the king to have Mordecai hanged thereon. Then he could go merrily in to the banquet.

His wicked plans failed. Bidden to herald Mordecai through the city to honor him for saving the king's life, and accused at the banquet of plotting to exterminate the Jews, he was hanged on the gallows he had built for Mordecai. The decree of massacre could not be rescinded, but a counter decree armed the Jews for defense. Thus did Esther save herself and her people. She is a fine example of the courage that good people of the present should have against the great odds of corrupt things that threaten their life.

UPHOLD DEMOCRATIC FORM OF GOVERNMENT—CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES IN ANNUAL C. S. MEETING

Declaring that democratic government is the instrument through which an irresistible, spiritual force is being channeled into the affairs of men, The Christian Science Board of Directors urged Christian Scientists, in annual meeting at Boston, Monday, to work strongly and actively for the defense of free government throughout the world.

Rightly conceived, the Directors told the Annual Meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., democratic government is something more than an aggregation of legislative acts and legalized rules of conduct.

"It is the orderly unfolding of the moral character and spiritual integrity of its citizens," the spokesmen for the worldwide Christian Science movement affirmed. As such, they said, free government rightly merits active defense of its sacred purpose, in addition to the pious declarations of allegiance to its outer form.

Thousands of Christian Scientists from many parts of the world heard the Directors issue a distinct challenge to the proud, boastful "Goliaths of today, as they go to and fro in the earth. Denying God, they are denying their own life, for God is the only life of man," they stated.

In free governments, now seriously endangered by the modern Goliaths, the Directors commented, there is a force that gathers its strength from "the same eternal truth given by Christ Jesus in his peerless Sermon on the Mount." Ultimately it shall be seen, they said, that "no individual or nation on earth can withstand the power and presence of God and His Christ."

Political Advertisement

The incoming President, Harry C. Browne, whose only official duty is to preside at the Annual Meeting, declared that the success of any organization, institution or government depends upon the spiritual efficacy of the government or controlling instrument.

"With the problem of world peace confronting us," he said, "these same divine qualities applied in individual thought and action will be found as potent and as powerful as they were in Jesus' time."

"But I have no story for the newspaper!" the young woman insisted, after I'd identified myself. "Everything's fixed up! ... There's nothing I want published!"

I reminded her that my city editor was notoriously un- "I'm so such an attitude. But she was unwilling."

I suggested that he was inclined to be unkind to reporters who returned without their stories. But she was adamant. I tried a flank attack, offering to make the story complimentary. But she was obdurate. So I surrendered. Unconditionally.

I hinted, however, to a considerable personal curiosity.

She regarded me somewhat dubiously.

I forgot to mention she was real pretty. Peaches and cream complexion. The kind that makes an old bachelor like me sorry he didn't marry years ago.

"I guess I can believe you," she finally decided. "Well then, but not for publication. I'll tell you ... You see, I wouldn't have been so angry about it if it hadn't been our first case!"

"Your first ...?"

"Wedding anniversary," she smiled at the stupidity of the male. I grinned hurriedly.

"Before that night he always arrived home every night at exactly 45 minutes after midnight!"

"Night shift?"

Like nodded. "But that night he didn't get in until 7 minutes after four in the morning! My beautiful steak was all dried out. And the hashed-brown potatoes were all soggy and cold ... Everything was spoiled. And then to blame it on a 'horrified'!"

"A ... what ...?"

"See! You don't believe it either! ... That's just what I told him! I said: 'Peter Dinwiddie, do you expect me to believe that fantastic story?'"

I reached quickly for an aspirin. I always carry along aspirins ... and often find use for them.

"You ... ah ... you any he met a ... horned toad?"

"Two of them! ... they raced! ... Down Lyndale avenue ... And he didn't get home until 7 minutes after four because he had to be an umpire, or referee or something!"

I coughed. It probably was my cigar. They aren't as good as they used to be.

"But, pardon me ma'am," I broke in, gentilelike, "I ... I thought you were going to tell me about that ... cr ... gun shot!"

"That's what I am doing!" she replied, crisply. "That shot was what started them off ... That's how they started the race!"

"You mean the ... cr ... horned toads shot off a gun ... I coughed again; that certainly was a bum cigar."

Her jaw dropped. She looked at me queerly.

"Don't you feel well?" she asked. She came a bit closer, and I could see that her nostrils tensed, inquiringly.

"Ma'am," I shook my head emphatically. "I'm a teetotaler ... but after hearing about these gun-toad horned toads ..."

She laughed. Delightedly, then continued:

"The shot was fired ...—enchantedly she stopped to laugh again—'by one of the two men who owned the horned toads ... Those two men you saw walking out of here just as you arrived!'"

"Oh ... You mean those ... those two lugs dressed in the fancy cowboy getups?"

"Oh, they're nice! ... They're from Texas, just up here on a visit. They did it on one of those crazy bets you read about."

"You see, they met my husband on the street and just insisted he act as referee, as umpire, or whatever it was ... They wouldn't let him go home!" At that her expression changed sharply; she turned around and uttered a startled ... "Oh!"

She ran to the telephone in the other room. "Oh! ... I'm terrible! ... I'm forgetting poor Peter! ... I have to phone him immediately and tell him those nice men came over and explained it all to me! ... Poor, poor Peter!"

"He'll be worried terribly! There he is, poor dear, working so hard, and all broken-hearted because he thinks I'm leaving tomorrow morning to go home to mother. I must tell him!"

She had the telephone in her hand; she was feverishly, nervously dialing a number.

"Goodbye ...," she called out to me; something in her voice that brought a kind of an uncomfortable tickling in my throat. Those nickel cigars they sell you nowadays are sure terrible.

"... Now remember, it's not for publication!" she called out again to me.

Then she turned back to the phone; she spoke to whoever had answered it, and her voice changed. It was soft and lilting, just like a summer breeze in a tree full of apple blossoms.

"Let me speak to Mr. Peter Dinwiddie ... quickly, please!"

So, that's why I'm sitting at my typewriter now, killing time while I try to figure out how to tell the boss there wasn't any story in that want ad about the gun shot.

Music Lessons Are Indispensable to Children

Are you teaching your child music or just giving him music lessons?

To the child there's as much difference in these two approaches as there is to a puppy between walking him around the block or letting him run free in the woods.

The teaching of music should mean opening up the world of melody and musical creation to the child, providing him with a source of calm and comfort or of energy stimulation through rhythms. When used as another vital element like air and water, music becomes a factor in the growth of poise and stability. This means singing with your children, listening together to all kinds of music on the air or by playing records, helping them make music for others. This last is the surest way of making music fun, and the social experience is one of the happy by-products.

Music lessons are indispensable, too, but they should begin after the interest in music has become genuine. Then learning to play an instrument is a privilege, something to get excited about. Of course there is bound to be discouragement when the child finds that it isn't as easy to make an instrument do what you want it to as it is to sing a song or turn on the radio! But a good teacher will be able to hold the child's interest with small successes and new discoveries about the instrument. A successful teacher will also help the child progress with speed so that within a year he can have the pleasure of making music that the family will enjoy. If progress is slow, try another teacher. Music lessons no longer need be dull either to the child or to the family listening to his practice.

When to start lessons is usually the first question asked by parents about a child's musical education. We've already answered it—when ever your child's interest makes him eager to begin. But what if interest is delayed beyond the average age of 8 or 9? This doesn't greatly matter—twelve is just as good an age if there is a real push toward accomplishment on the child's part. On the other hand don't hold back a five-year-old who loves to pick out tunes on the piano. Lessons won't be a burden to him at this early age because they help him satisfy a natural urge to create music.

Don't, however, just wait around for a child's musical tastes to show themselves. Great talent or genius will, of course, break through the utmost indifference on your part. But the average child needs to have his interest directed to music if he is to advance to the instrument playing stage. But, as we said, you begin with music, not with the lessons.

Place paper or paper toweling on table when you peel fruits and vegetables, hull berries, break eggs or measure ingredients. You can just fold the paper, discard it and have a clean surface without cleaning.

PICTURE PUTS AN END TO IGNORANCE

The special attraction, "Mom and Dad" which is coming to the Bethel theatre for a limited engagement starting next Monday put an end to ignorance. It deals with all the delicate subjects of hygiene and the facts of life, in a cold, honest, frank, outspoken way.

This film tells its story—a story that thousands of high school girls "lived" last year—and then it goes on to prove where, in most cases, the evil lies—who is to blame. But it doesn't stop there—it keeps right on going—proves its point and suggests the solution.

"Mom and Dad" is more than a motion picture—in fact it's three motion pictures in one—plus a hygiene commentator, Mr. Elliot Forbes, in person. It is a vital and tremendously important event in every community throughout the nation, today.

Conditions which existed before the War, but which have increased many-fold because of it—yes, shameful conditions—are its subject matter. "Mom and Dad" is powerful screen-fare, too powerful

"Mom and Dad" is more than a motion picture—in fact it's three motion pictures in one—plus a hygiene commentator, Mr. Elliot Forbes, in person. It is a vital and tremendously important event in every community throughout the nation, today.

Conditions which existed before the War, but which have increased many-fold because of it—yes, shameful conditions—are its subject matter. "Mom and Dad" is powerful screen-fare, too powerful in fact for the sick, ailing or weak-hearted as nurses are carried by the attraction to aid any who faint.

Sparkling, new and full of modern 1945 zest and catchy dialogue, "Mom and Dad" is first of all an entertainment, secondly an impressive warning, and finally proof that immoral living doesn't pay. It has its highly educational moments, in fact many doctors, nurses, health officials and educators throughout the country have driven miles to witness it—because of their interest in just a single sequence.

Because of the nature of the story grade school-age children are not admitted. It's ideal educational entertainment for high school-age and older however. In view of the fact that its medical sequences speak out the truth so frankly and boldly, so that all may see, hear and understand the facts of life, it is shown only to segregated audiences. There will be shows for women and girls only at 2 and 7 p. m. each day and for men and boys only at 9 p. m. each night.
